(Who can read the following lines (which we take from Harper's Rezer's without having the deepest and tenderest, as well as the holiest emotions of the soul awakened, the days of infancy, childhood, and early manhood revived and bissed by the memories of a loving and faithful mother?

Not one word of human diction Is more eloquently dear,

Than that word, in every household,

He familiar to the eac.

The a title taught by angels, As they journey to and fro,

To express a tie of kindend Heaven hallowed here below Often hath my spirit striven,

Since its earthsome task begun, To revive its child emotions,

In the hosum of the man; But life's cold, unfriendly shadows Seemed to chill the old delight,

Till my mother's voice awoke them, As in boyhood's morning bright.

As I gaze along the vista Of the cesseless march of years I behold her love-light beaming. Through each day of joys or fears;

And when yet I am the saddest, Tones of hers can soothe the pain. Gentle mother, dear and patient, May thy influence long remain!

Mates of thine are growing aged, But thou art not old to me; Every winsome charm remaineth

That I knew in infancy ; Airy shapes that sometimes hover Round my pillow while I rest, Bear thy features, darling mother,

And my sleep is fully blest. VARIETY.

According to the old German custom, the sons were to walk to church after their father, but the daughters before their mother, to show that her eye should never be off them. It is not known where he who invented the Coleridge was descanting, in the presence of Charles Lamb, upon the repulsive appearance of the oyster. "It isn't handsome, Coleridge," said Lamb ; " but it has the advantage of you in one thing." "What is that?" said Coleridge, who was an exhaustless talker. "It knows when to shut its mouth," was the reply.

When the Sultan was in Vienna, Cardinal Rauschen had an audience with him, in which he begged his Majesty to do something for the amelioration of the Christians in his dominions. " Even at the present time," said the Cardinal, every Christian is termed dog-Christian dog. "That is true," replied the Sultan ; " but as a set-off to this, here in Vienna every second or third dog in the streets is called Sultan. Here is a queer rhyme which is quite contrary in sense, as you read it across, running the lines together:

Cosroes, King of Persia, in conversation with two philosophers and his vizier, asked-" What situation of man is most to be deplored?" One of the philosophers maintained that it was old age accompanied with extreme poverty; the other, that it was to have the body oppressed by infirmities, the mind worn out, and the heart broken by a heavy series of misfortunes. "I know a condition more to be pitied," said the vizier, " and it is that of him who has passed through life without doing good; and who, unexpectedly surprised by death, is sent to appear before the tribunal of the Sovereign Judge. TERRIBLE CONSEQUENCES OF A MISTRANSLATION .-

Professor Max Muller tells us in his new work on the languages and religion of the East, that when the Government prohibited widow-burning in India the Brahmins cited chapter and verse from the Veda as their authority for the rite :- " Let these women, holding clarified butter, consign themselves to the fire. Immortal, not childless, not husbandless, well adorned with gems, let them pass into the fire." Thousands upon thousands of lives have been sacrificed on the strength of this text, which proves to have been wilfully mistranslated by the priests, chiefly by the substitution of the word "aguet," fire, for "agre," altar. Its real meaning is :-- " May these women who are not widows, but have good husbands draw near with oil and butter; those who are mothers may go up first to the altar, without sorrow, but decked with fine ica els." The Rig-veda, says professor Muller, nowhere sanctions widow-burning.

"I WISH I WAS RICH."-You do, do you? Well, we have heard the same wish uttered from a thousand of lips other than yours. How much better off do you think you would be if you were rich? Have you counted all the heart-racking cares and anxieties that invariably attend the possession of riches? "I could work when I pleased and play when I pleased; I could surround myself with all the luxuries of life, could entertain my friends in style, and be happy." Ah, could you; let us see. Once released from that steady employment which necessity has made al habit with you, you would soon cloy with b high living, and superficial friends, and seen relish for life which you now enjoy igined poverty.
